The 1990s have been a period of rapid change, particularly in the area of information technology. This has led to a growing emphasis on the use of technology in the workplace, and a corresponding need for training and development programs to ensure that employees have the skills and knowledge to use this technology effectively.

'Alabang Boys' case revives calls return of death penalty

By Luis B. Salazar, Staff Writer

THE PHILIPPINE BAR ASSOCIATION (PBA) has urged the Department of Justice to reinstate the death penalty for heinous crimes, citing the case of the "Alabang Boys" as a catalyst for such a move.

The PBA, in a resolution passed last week, expressed its support for the death penalty for heinous crimes, specifically for the case of the "Alabang Boys" who were convicted of multiple murders and rape in 1992.

The resolution, which was passed by a majority vote, stated that the death penalty is a just and necessary punishment for heinous crimes, and that it is a deterrent to other potential offenders.

The PBA also expressed its support for the death penalty for heinous crimes, and that it is a deterrent to other potential offenders.

Justice Secretary Esteban M. Mervina, Jr. has expressed his support for the death penalty for heinous crimes, stating that it is a just and necessary punishment for such offenses.

Mervina, in a statement released last week, said that the death penalty is a just and necessary punishment for heinous crimes, and that it is a deterrent to other potential offenders.

He also expressed his support for the death penalty for heinous crimes, and that it is a deterrent to other potential offenders.

The case of the "Alabang Boys" has reignited the debate over the death penalty in the Philippines. The case involved five young men who were convicted of multiple murders and rape in 1992.

The case has sparked a renewed interest in the death penalty, with many people calling for its reinstatement. The case has also led to a renewed debate over the death penalty in the Philippines.

The case of the "Alabang Boys" has also led to a renewed debate over the death penalty in the Philippines. The case involved five young men who were convicted of multiple murders and rape in 1992.

The case has sparked a renewed interest in the death penalty, with many people calling for its reinstatement. The case has also led to a renewed debate over the death penalty in the Philippines.

Japanese women going bananas over banana health diet

THEY ONLY EAT BANANAS for three days a week, and they are going bananas over it.

The latest craze in Japan is eating bananas. It's not just for the health benefits, but for the taste.

The trend began in 2004 when a Japanese dietitian named Shigeo Kashiwagi introduced a diet called the "Banana Diet."

Japanese dietitians believe that eating bananas for three days a week can help with weight loss and improve health.

The diet consists of eating only bananas for three days a week, and then eating a normal diet for the other four days.

Many women in Japan have tried the diet and reported losing weight and feeling better.

Some have lost as much as 10 kilograms (22 pounds) in just three weeks.

Others have reported feeling more energetic and less stressed.

The diet is also popular among men, but it is more popular among women.

Some dietitians believe that the diet works because bananas are high in potassium, which helps with blood pressure and heart health.

Others believe it works because bananas are low in calories and high in fiber.

The diet is also popular because bananas are easy to eat and taste good.

Some dietitians warn that the diet is not a long-term solution for weight loss.

They say that eating only bananas for three days a week is not a healthy way to eat.

They also warn that the diet may cause potassium levels to rise too high, which can be dangerous.

Some women have reported side effects from the diet, such as constipation and dehydration.

BARAN NUKLE PLANT

Proposal to bring 'white elephant' to life revived

BARAN, CAGAYAN—The Baran Nuclear Power Plant, a project that has been in the works for over 20 years, is being revived.

The project was first announced in 1984, but it was abandoned because of opposition from local residents.

Now, the project is being revived because of the need for electricity in the region.

Philippines nuclear plant

Once deemed a 'white elephant' project, the Baran nuclear power plant, which has been in the works for over 20 years, is being revived.

The project was first announced in 1984, but it was abandoned because of opposition from local residents.

Now, the project is being revived because of the need for electricity in the region.

Swiss court upholds PCGG

THE SWISS FEDERAL COURT has upheld the decision of the Swiss Federal Tribunal (SFT) to reject the application of the Philippine Commission on Good Governance (PCGG) for the return of assets.

The PCGG had filed an application with the SFT in 2004, asking for the return of assets worth $1.5 billion.

The SFT had rejected the application in 2005, saying that the PCGG did not have the authority to file such an application.

The PCGG had appealed the decision to the Swiss Federal Court.

The Swiss Federal Court has now upheld the decision of the SFT.

The court said that the PCGG did not have the authority to file such an application.

The court also said that the PCGG did not have the authority to file such an application.

Death & return

FAMILIES OF THE 100,000+ PHILIPPINE AMERICANS who have been in the United States for decades are now being asked to return to the Philippines. The question is: Why?

Employment is the main reason cited. But the Philippines is not a country where you can find a job easily. The unemployment rate is high, and the economy is slow. The government is not doing enough to create jobs for its citizens.

The government is also asking for more money to run the country. It is asking for more taxes and fees. This is not a good idea. The people are already paying a lot of money. They are not getting anything in return.

DENR lays down '1-strike policy'

Arienza warns execs illegal logging will cost them their jobs

By Angelo Reyes

PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER

MANILA, July 10.—The Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) has laid down a "1-strike policy" for illegal logging. DENR Secretary General Arienza said that any executive found guilty of illegal logging will be immediately dismissed from his position. Arienza said that the policy is aimed at deterring illegal logging and protecting the environment. Pakistan national security adviser fired

ISLAMABAD, Dec. 11 (AP) — Pakistan's national security adviser, Gen. Mirza Aslam Beg, was fired Tuesday by Prime Minister Yousuf Raza Gilani. Beg had been in the post since 2008. The firing came after a series of reports that Beg had been involved in a power struggle with the prime minister. The government said that Beg's actions had been "unbecomingly unbecoming" and that he had failed to perform his duties as national security adviser.

Teres is Asia's finance minister of the year

By Ben C. Jones

TERES, 45, was named finance minister of the year by the Asian Development Bank (ADB) for her role in leading the Philippines' economic recovery from the Asian financial crisis. She took office in January 2001, succeeding her husband, who was the finance minister from 1993 to 2000. Under her leadership, the Philippines' economy has shown significant improvement, with GDP growth reaching 4.5% in 2001, up from a 1.5% decline in 2000. She has also been instrumental in securing international financial support for the country's recovery efforts.

Actors set to pick guild head

Lawmaker members vote for Philip Baker Hall

THE ACTORS' GUILD OF AMERICA is holding its annual election to pick a new president. The guild's members, who are mostly actors, will vote for a new president on May 15. The current president is Philip Baker Hall, who has served for three years.

Hall, who is also a lawyer, has been a member of the guild since 1968. He has been a member of the guild's executive committee since 1988. He has also been a member of the guild's board of directors since 1992.

Hall is running for re-election. He is the only candidate who is currently a member of the guild's executive committee.

Hall is also a member of the guild's board of directors. He is the only member of the board who is currently a member of the guild's executive committee.

Bruce Lee's last HK home to be saved as a tourist site

BRUCE LEE'S LAST HOME IN HONG KONG is set to be saved as a tourist site. The home, which was built in 1968, is now in a state of disrepair.

The home is located in a residential area of Hong Kong. It is a two-story building with a traditional Chinese architectural style.

The home is now owned by a private company. The company is planning to restore the home and open it to the public as a museum.

The museum will showcase Bruce Lee's personal belongings and memorabilia. It will also provide information about his life and career.

The museum is expected to open in the near future. It will be a valuable addition to Hong Kong's cultural heritage.
